

MEMBERSHIP NOMINATION : PROCEDURES

Economic Club membership is limited in number and includes CEOs of local corporations, managing partners in leading law and accounting firms, executives of top consulting, technology and research organizations, and national heads of associations and other entities in healthcare, insurance, culture and education, as well as other businesses and professions. Members convene monthly for a luncheon, dinner or breakfast at which they can bring a limited number of guests at a reasonable fee. Events are held at the city's leading hotels. The Economic Club is a 501c3 organization and, for tax purposes, dues are considered a charitable contribution.

The procedure for applying for membership requires that applicants be proposed by a current Club member and seconded by another current Club member (not of the same company). The candidate's bio and company information must also be submitted to complete this application. Once an application is submitted, it will be reviewed at the next Membership Committee meeting and the primary nominator will be notified of the Committee's decision.

In considering potential new members, the Membership Committee takes into consideration applicants' business and professional achievements, governmental and diplomatic service, and community involvement. The Membership Committee meets regularly to consider member nominations. Members are required to pay annual dues for membership in the Economic Club.

Please submit all application materials together.

A complete application includes:
